Sarah Healy, Chief Skills and Learning Officer, Udemy

As Chief Skills and Learning Officer, Healy will lead Udemy's global strategy for building and scaling critical skills across the organization and nurturing talent. Healy will implement comprehensive talent development programs to support the needs of the global workforce and business transformation. By applying data-driven insights and leveraging emerging technologies like AI and adaptive learning, Healy will help accelerate the effectiveness and reach of Udemy's internal upskilling efforts. Additionally, Healy will partner with Udemy's go-to-market teams to support their enterprise customer engagements by providing tested transformation best practices and playbooks around building a continuous learning culture.

"We are thrilled to welcome Sarah to the team as she brings a rare combination of strategic vision, deep experience working with large multinational corporations and hands-on expertise in developing workforce skilling programs that drive impact," said Hugo Sarrazin, President and CEO of Udemy. "As AI continues to reshape every industry, Sarah's leadership will be instrumental in helping our customers embrace skills-based strategies and build cultures of continuous development to thrive in the future of work."

"The pace of AI innovation is redefining how we work and learn, creating significant challenges and unprecedented opportunities," said Healy. "I'm thrilled to join Udemy at this pivotal moment when the need for continuous skills development has never been more critical. I look forward to working with our internal teams and customers to develop innovative approaches that ensure organizations and individuals can navigate this transformation successfully."

Healy joins Udemy from ESW, a global DTC ecommerce company, where she served as Vice President of Leadership, Talent & Organizational Development, leading a global team responsible for executing comprehensive talent and leadership strategies that foster a culture of continuous learning. Previously, she served as Global Director of Leadership Development at Mastercard, where she led wide-scale global projects to enhance organizational culture and equip People leaders to cultivate high-performing teams. Before that, she was at Meta (formerly Facebook) serving as Global Organizational Capability & Learning Program Manager, where she designed and implemented scalable learning programs across multiple regions for the company's sales team. Earlier in her career, Healy held L&D and sales effectiveness roles at companies including Optus, Deloitte Australia, Ericom and KPMG.
