"We've worked hard to create an inclusive and supportive company culture that translates to Udemy offices across the globe, enabling our employees to thrive in both their personal and professional lives," said Karen Fascenda, Chief People Officer at Udemy. "Our most recent employee engagement survey revealed that 93% of Udemates are proud to work for Udemy and would recommend us to their friends. It is incredibly exciting to see our employees as some of the most vocal champions of both our mission and our company."

Best Places to Work honorees were determined by Built In's algorithm, examining company data related to compensation and benefit offerings. Additionally, as job seekers on the Built In platform have become increasingly focused on finding workplaces that offer flexible and remote work options along with DEI programming and other people-centric offerings, this criteria also weighed heavily in the selection process for the list of 2023 honorees.

"It's my honor to congratulate this year's Best Places to Work winners," said Sheridan Orr, Chief Marketing Officer at Built In. "These exemplary companies understand that their people are their most valuable asset and they've stepped up to meet the changing expectations of modern professionals, including a desire to work for companies that deliver purpose, growth and inclusion. These winners set the stage for a human-centric future of work and we can't wait to see that future unfold."

This recognition comes on the heels of several other recent workplace accolades for Udemy, including designation as a Fair Pay Workplace and being named to Great Place to Work's list of Best Workplaces for Parents™ and Best Workplaces for Women™. Udemy strives to create a workplace environment that is inclusive and equitable through a focus on Belonging, Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (BEDI) and providing communities through Employee Resource Groups (ERGs). Employees are also encouraged to bring their whole selves to work through key resources and benefits that support mental, physical, emotional and financial health.
